TRUMP ENDS 'DREAMER' IMMIGRATION PROGRAM

I President Donald Trump scrapped an Obama-era program that protects from deportation immigrants brought illegally into the United States as children, delaying implementation until March and giving a gridlocked Congress six months to decide the fate of almost 800,000 young people. As the so-called Dreamers who have benefited from the five-year-old program were plunged into uncertainty, business and religious leaders, mayors, governors, Democratic lawmakers, unions, civil liberties advocates and former President Barack Obama all condemned Trump's move. The action was announced not by Trump but by Jeff Sessions, his attorney general, who called the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program an unconstitutional overreach by Obama. For more, see page 4

IRMA BARRELS TOWARD THE CARIBBEAN

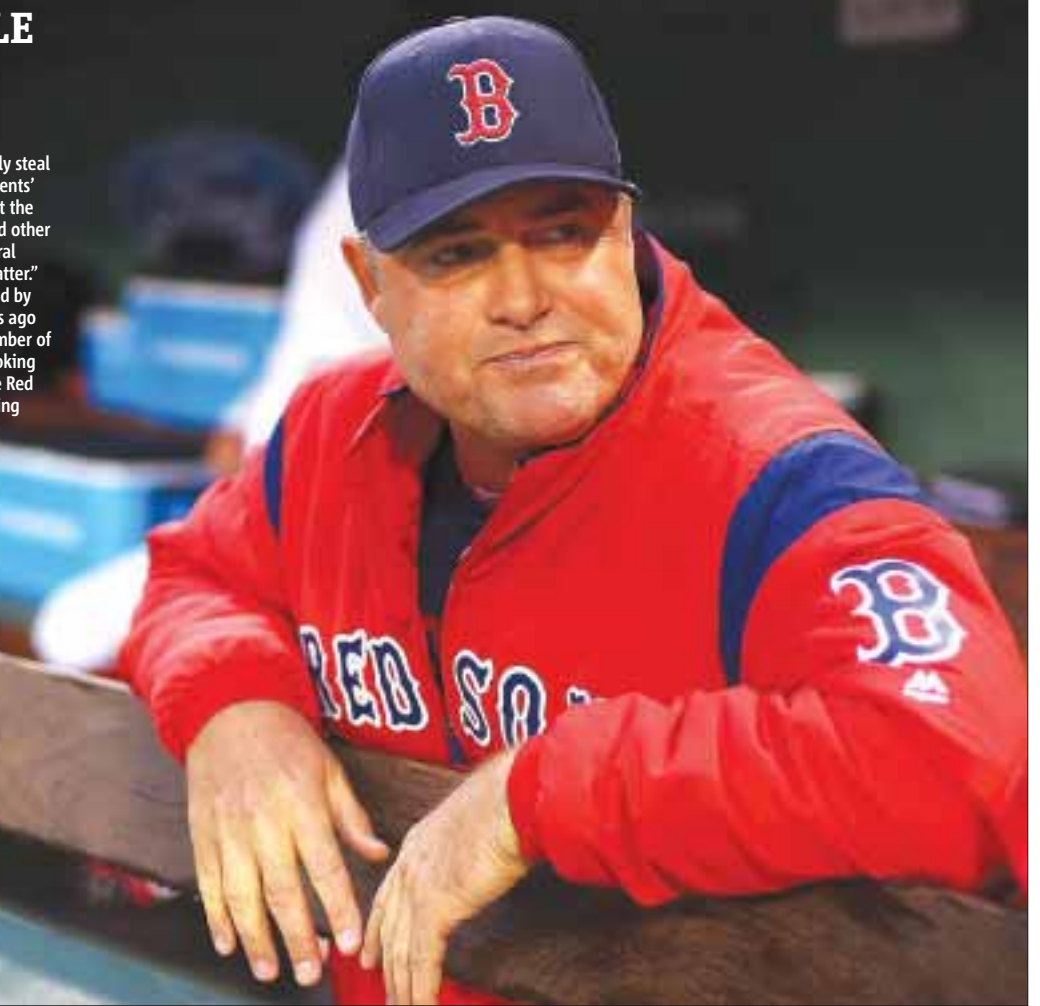

2 Highly dangerous Category 5 Hurricane Irma rolled toward the Caribbean and southern United States, packing winds of 185 miles per hour on Tuesday, even as Texas and Louisiana still reeled from devastating Hurricane Harvey. Irma's eye was forecast to cross the northern Leeward Islands, east of Puerto Rico, on Tuesday night or early Wednesday, and hurricane warnings were in place from there to the British and U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico, the U.S. National Hurricane Center (NHC) said in a statement. The NHC called Irma a "potentially catastrophic" Category 5 hurricane and tweeted that it was "the strongest hurricane in the Atlantic [Ocean] outside the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico in NHC records." Category 5 is the highest NHC designation.

REPORT: RED SOX STOLE SIGNS FROM YANKEES USING APPLE WATCH

3 A report released by Michael S. Schmidt of the New York Times on Tuesday revealed that the Boston Red Sox used an Apple Watch to steal signs from the New York Yankees during the 2017 regular season: "Investigators for Major League Baseball have determined that the Boston Red Sox, who are in first place in the American League East and likely headed to the playoffs, executed a scheme to illicitly steal hand signals from opponents' catchers in games against the second-place Yankees and other teams, according to several people briefed on the matter." The "scheme" was noticed by the Yankees, a few weeks ago when they noticed a member of Boston's training staff looking at his Apple Watch in the Red Sox dugout and then giving players information.

SUB OWNER: JOURNALIST KILLED BY HATCH COVER

4 Swedish journalist Kim Wall died when she was accidentally hit by a heavy hatch cover onboard a home-made submarine, the Danish owner of the vessel testified in court on Tuesday. Peter Madsen, who denies killing Wall, said he was holding the hatch for her but it slipped and hit her head as they sailed in the strait between Denmark and Sweden last month on the UC3 Nautilus submarine he had built. Madsen, 46, was speaking in court after being charged with killing the Swedish journalist on the submarine and mutilating her body — a case bearing many of the attributes of the region's popular Nordic Noir books and films. It could mean a sentence of five years to life in prison for Madsen, if found guilty. The court on Tuesday ordered a psychiatric evaluation and that Madsen be kept in custody for four weeks.

FACEBOOK'S NEXT STEP TO MONETIZE WHATSAPP

5 Facebook Inc. is gearing up to make money from WhatsApp, the messaging service used by more than a billion people every day, the Wall Street Journal reported on Tuesday. WhatsApp will be testing new features to make it easier for people to communicate with businesses they want to reach on WhatsApp, the messaging service said on a blog post. "We're building and testing new tools via a free WhatsApp Business app for small companies and an enterprise solution for bigger companies operating at a large scale with a global base of customers, like airlines, e-commerce sites, and banks," according to the blog post. WhatsApp has already started a pilot program that would feature a green badge next to a business contact, indicating that the business was verified by the messaging service.

The city reacts to DACA dismantling

"New York City will fight to defend our Dreamers," Mayor Bill de Blasio vowed.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork

More than two dozen protesters were arrested outside Trump Tower Tuesday after the Trump administration dismantled the Obama-era DACA program.

President Barack Obama created the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program in June 2012 to protect certain undocumented immigrants who entered the U.S. as minors from deportation. Those minors are known as "Dreamers."

"The effect of this unilateral executive amnesty, among other things, contributed to a surge of minors at the southern border with humanitarian consequences," said Attorney General Jeff Sessions. "It denied jobs to hundreds of thousands of Americans by allowing those same illegal aliens to take those jobs."

Protesters gathered outside Trump Tower after the Trump administration announced the "orderly wind down" of the DACA program. BESS ADLER

An "orderly wind down" of the DACA program is slated to begin March 5, officials said, and the approximately 800,000 recipients will not be affected immediately.

In a statement after Sessions announced the DACA rollback, President Donald Trump said, "I do not favor punishing children, most of whom are now adults, for the actions of their parents. But we must also recognize that we are a nation of opportunity because we are a nation of laws."

"Only by the reliable enforcement of immigration law can we produce safe communities, a robust middle class and economic fairness for all Americans," Trump added.

Protests around the country ensued, from demonstrators shutting down Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D.C., and students in Denver

"Rescinding DACA is just feeding the beast of bigotry red meat."

About two dozen people were arrested after sit-ins blocked traffic outside the Midtown high-rise, NBC4 reported. Those who cooperate will be ticketed and released without fingerprinting, Mayor Bill de Blasio's press secretary Eric Phillips said in a tweet.

City immigrants and DACA supporters were not the only ones who were outraged by the program's impending end.

"Rescinding DACA is just feeding the beast of bigotry red meat. That's all this is about," Gov. Andrew Cuomo tweeted.

An earlier tweet from the governor said that the state will not "demonize diversity" or "stand by as 42,000 NYers are deported" and said the state would sue if Trump rescinded the program.

Cuomo also urged New Yorkers to sign a petition at governor.ny.gov telling Congress to pass the DREAM Act, which was introduced in 2001 to qualify immigrant minors for residency.

"New Yorkers know that we are a nation of immigrants," Gov. Cuomo said. "If there is a move to deport immigrants, then I say start with me. I come from a family of immigrants who came to this country without jobs, without money, without resources — seeking only the promise of America embodied by the Lady of the Harbor."

In a tweet, Mayor Bill de Blasio said, "We warned you not to threaten our neighbors. New York City will fight to defend our Dreamers."

Citi Bike's fall expansion will add 2,000 bikes and 140 stations throughout New York City. BESS ADLER

Citi Bike's fall expansion to add 2K bikes, 140 stations

The bikesharing service rides into Harlem, Astoria, Long Island City, Crown Heights and Prospect Heights next week.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

Citi Bike is on the move again. The popular bikesharing service is set to start its latest expansion in New York City next week to add 2,000 more bikes and 140 additional docking stations.

The expansion starts Sept. 12 in Harlem, Astoria, Long Island City, Crown Heights and Prospect Heights. In addition to growing Citi Bike's network into new neighborhoods, phase two of the service's growth will also add docking stations and bikes to current neighborhoods.

"With this round of Citi Bike expansion, bikeshare will now cover more than 30 square miles with more New Yorkers able to take advantage of this fast, affordable, convenient and sustainable transportation option," Department of Transportation Commissioner Polly Trottenberg said in a statement.

More than 450 jobs have been created since Citi Bike launched in early 2013, said Jay Walder, president and CEO of Motivate, which operates Citi Bike.

"We've been able to turn urban bike-share from an interesting experiment into a crucial component of our city's transit network," he added.

Citi Bike, which is the largest bikeshare service in the U.S., has had record-breaking ridership, logging 14 million rides in 2016, four million more than the previous year, and hitting 70,000 rides in a single day this past June.

By the end of the year, the service will have 12,000 bikes at more than 600 stations throughout the city. Officials said that this is the final planned expansion of Citi Bike, but the "DOT expects to bring bikeshare to more New Yorkers and is actively exploring all available options for doing so."

Citi Bike offers a $12 day pass with 24-hour access and a three-day, 72-hour pass for $24. Both feature unlimited 30-minute rides, with each additional 15 minutes an extra $4. Annual membership is $163 and includes the first 45 minutes of each ride. Each additional 15 minutes is $2.50.

Reduced memberships are available for residents of the NYC Housing Authority, first-year IDNYC cardholders and certain credit union members. Visit citibike.nyc.com for more info.

NYC FASHION WEEK

New York Fashion Week ready for political-minded showcase

New York Fashion Week is gearing up with designers ready to present their visions for Spring 2018.

More than 100 designers will showcase their latest creations in venues across New York from Thursday, although some flagship brands such as Tommy Hilfiger, Thom Browne and Altuzarra have moved their shows overseas.

The six-day schedule, which was formerly one week, has been streamlined to give buyers time to attend London Fashion Week.

In keeping with the political messaging that often underlies the program, many fashionistas are expected to wear blue ribbons in collaboration with the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

"The ACLU is an important group that really stands up for people's rights — the right for people to live their lives as they choose," said Steven Kolb, president of the Council of Fashion Designers of America, Inc. (CFDA).

Last season, the CFDA paired with Planned Parenthood to create pink pins that ended up on the garments of models, designers such as Marchesa's Georgina Chapman and Vogue editor-in-chief Anna Wintour. REUTERS

Hillary Clinton sheds light on her opinion of Sen. Bernie Sanders in her new book. GETTY IMAGES

Clinton slams Sanders, supporters for 'lasting damage' in new book

In "What Happened," she takes Bernie and his bros to task for her defeat.

MICHAEL MARTIN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Hillary Clinton feels your pain.

If you're bitter at Bernie Sanders and his supporters for hurting her chances in the 2016 election, that is.

In the new Hillary Clinton book, "What Happened," due to be released on Sept. 12, the thwarted presidential candidate swats Sanders for his attacks on her during the Democratic primary, claiming that he caused "lasting damage" and inspired "Trump's 'Crooked Hillary' campaign."

According to excerpts from the book posted on Twitter by a group of Hillary supporters, Clinton expresses frustration about Sanders' unrealistic promises, and the political advice she received to hold back from defending herself against his attacks.

"Throughout the primaries, every time I wanted to hit back against Bernie's attacks, I was told to restrain myself," she writes. "Noting that his plans didn't add up, that they would inevitably result in raising taxes against middle-class families, or that they were little more than a pipe dream — all of this could be used to reinforce his argument that I wasn't a true progressive. My team kept reminding me that we didn't want to alienate Bernie's supporters. President Obama urged me to grit my teeth and lay off Bernie as much as I could. I felt like I was in a straitjacket."

The often-derogatory "Bernie bro" movement did not escape her notice. "Some of his supporters, the so-called Bernie Bros, took to harassing my supporters online. It got ugly and more than a little sexist," she writes.

The excerpts, posted by pro-Hillary Twitter and Facebook accounts, show Clinton with the gloves off. "When I finally challenged Bernie during a debate to name a single time I changed a position or a vote because of a financial contribution, he couldn't come up with anything," writes Clinton. "Nonetheless, his attacks caused lasting damage, making it harder to unify progressives in the general election and paving the way for Trump's 'Crooked Hillary' campaign."

The blunt snippets stand in direct contrast to a candidate who always came off as measured and careful — too much so, some said. "She says a lot in this book, and some of it is going to surprise people. People should buy it, read it, and consider what she constructively lays out. It's a great read," an unnamed Clinton aide told CNN.

Putin: Russia reserves right to further cut US diplomatic numbers

Russia reserves the right to cut the U.S. diplomatic staff in Moscow, Russian President Vladimir Putin said on Tuesday, in response to what he called Washington's "boorish" treatment of Russia's diplomatic mission on U.S. soil.

Speaking after U.S. officials ordered Russia to vacate diplomatic premises in several American cities, Putin said he would order the Russian foreign ministry to take legal action over alleged violations of Russia's property rights.

"That the Americans reduced the number of our diplomatic facilities — this is their right," Putin told a news conference in the Chinese city of Xiamen, where he was attending a summit of major emerging economies.

"The only thing is that it was done in such a clearly boorish manner. That does not reflect well on our American partners."

"As for our buildings and facilities, this is an unprecedented thing," Putin said. "This is a clear violation of Russia's property rights. Therefore ... I will order the Foreign Ministry to go to court — and let's see just how efficient the much-praised U.S. judiciary is."

The United States ordered the closure of the Russian consulate in San Francisco and two buildings housing trade missions in Washington, D.C. and New York City. REUTERS

Feet Hurt? Bunions? Hammertoes? Heel Pain?

Platelet Rich Plasma Therapy (PRP)

A new approach for treating Tendon Injuries for the Achilles, Tendonitis and Plantar Fasciitis (Heel and Arch Pain)

Take The Foot Health Checkup

- My toes are stretched, discolored and thickened.
- The sides of my toes dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "cramp" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight- they are all cocked-up, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thick no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my heel hurts all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and scaly- sometimes they itch.
- My feet just hurt all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rashes, or open sores.

This one thing will likely start WWII, not Trump or North Korea, according to Elon Musk

MICHAEL MARTIN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Providing a dose of dystopia over Labor Day weekend, Tesla founder and CEO Elon Musk repeatedly tweeted about his concerns that North Korea won't start World War III — artificial intelligence will.

Musk has frequently warned about the dangers of AI, calling for it to be regulated just as weaponry would. Following last week's news about North Korea's unexpected escalation of its nuclear program, on Monday Musk tweeted that the rogue nation "should be low on our list of concerns for civilizational existential risk. NK has no entangling alliances that wd polarize world into war."

Who does? Musk linked to an article that quoted Russian President Vladimir Putin as saying, "Artificial intelligence is the future, not only for Russia, but for all humankind... Whoever becomes the leader in this sphere will become the ruler of the world."

Musk commented, "It begins."

Although an AI expert and author of the book "What to Do When Machines Do Everything" says that there are "three horses in this race" — the U.S., China and India — and Musk clearly fears other nations will jockey for dominance. "Competition for AI superiority at national level most likely cause of WW3 imo," he tweeted.

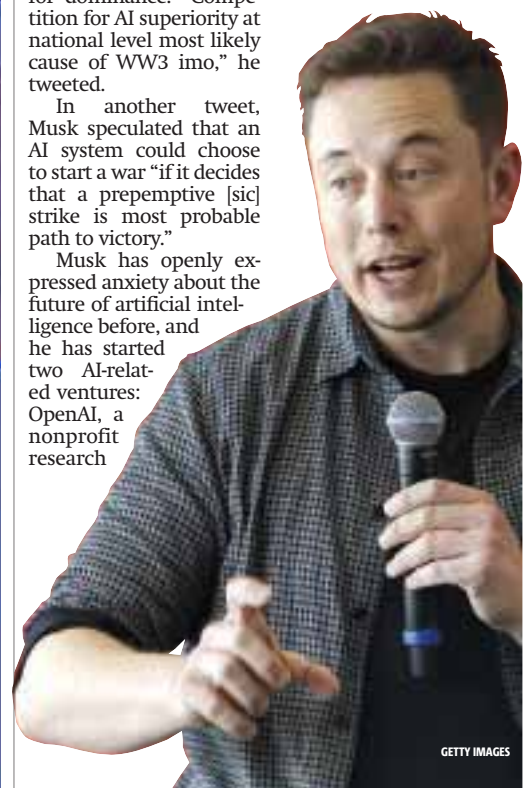

In another tweet, Musk speculated that an AI system could choose to start a war "if it decides that a preemptive [sic] strike is most probable path to victory."

Musk has openly expressed anxiety about the future of artificial intelligence before, and he has started two AI-related ventures: OpenAI, a nonprofit research company, and Neuralink, a startup aimed at connecting the human brain with computers.

"I was trying to really sound the alarm on the AI front for quite a while, but it was clearly having no impact," he said in an April interview near the launch of Neuralink. "So I was like, 'Oh fine, OK, then we'll have to try to help develop it in a way that's good.'"

Trump to unveil self-driving car guidelines next week: Sources

Many automakers have pledged to get self-driving cars on the market by 2020 or 2021.

President Donald Trump's administration is set to unveil revised self-driving vehicle guidelines next week in Michigan, responding to automakers' calls for elimination of legal barriers to putting autonomous vehicles on the road, sources briefed on the matter said on Tuesday.

U.S. Transportation Secretary Elaine Chao was expected to unveil the revised guidelines next Tuesday at a self-driving vehicle testing facility in Ann Arbor, Michigan, four people briefed on the matter said.

A spokesman for Chao did not immediately comment. The White House Office of Management and Budget approved the undisclosed Transportation Department changes to the guidelines on Aug. 31, according to a posting on a government website.

On Wednesday, the U.S. House of Representatives will vote on a sweeping proposal to speed deployment of self-driving cars without human controls and bar states from blocking autonomous vehicles. The measure could help many automakers and tech companies keep their pledges of getting self-driving cars on the market by 2020 or 2021.

The House will vote on the bill under fast-track rules that allow no amendments. A bipartisan group of U.S. senators working on similar legislation has not introduced a bill.

The bill, passed unanimously by a House panel in July, would allow automakers to obtain exemptions to deploy up to 25,000 vehicles without meeting existing auto safety standards in the first year. Over three years, the cap would rise to 100,000 vehicles annually.

The House measure would require automakers to provide regulators with safety assessment reports proposed in the 2016 self-driving guidelines, but would not require pre-market approval of advanced vehicle technologies.

Consumer advocates have called for giving the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration quicker access to crash data and more funding to oversee self-driving cars.

Automakers and technology companies, including General Motors Co. and Alphabet Inc.'s self-driving unit Waymo, have sought easier federal rules for self-driving technology, while some consumer groups have pushed for more safeguards.

The Obama administration issued guidelines for self-driving cars in September 2016, calling on automakers to voluntarily submit details of self-driving vehicle systems in a 15-point "safety assessment" and urging states to defer to the federal government on most vehicle regulations.

Automakers raised numerous concerns about the Obama administration guidance, including the suggestion that automakers should submit systems to regulators for review before putting them on the market.

Companies including Waymo, GM, Ford Motor Co., Uber Technologies Inc., Tesla Inc. and others are aggressively pursuing automated vehicle technologies.

Why Aren't Doctors Telling About These Two Often

Two Advanced Medical Treatments Every Knee Arthritis Sufferer

New York City, New York

NY Pain MD is a medical group with locations in Midtown NYC and Downtown NYC that has treated thousands of knee arthritis and joint pain patients.

Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. Including when and why you should consider each of these 2 treatment approaches to get maximum results.

If you suffer with knee or other joint arthritis pain, you have probably already tried many treatments ... especially countless pain medications. Experienced doctors understand that, even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for knee arthritis pain... they are rarely the answer over the longer term.

In most cases they have minimal results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are There Any Better Options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there are two very good options for knee arthritis to help relieve the pain.

There are two options that many knee arthritis sufferers have never heard of.

Before we get into the two treatments, please understand this...

NY Pain MD is a well established medical clinic that has treated thousands of knee arthritis sufferers and joint and back pain sufferers. Patients travel from all over the area and even several states away from NYC to be treated at one of their clinics because they want the best medical treatments available. What you are about to discover are two REAL medical treatments. Not miracle cures you see on infomercials or non-medical treatments promoted on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no cure for arthritis. But there are these two treatments that have already helped thousands of knee arthritis sufferers - possibly just like you.

The first treatment is more common than the second. Even if you have heard of this treatment - or even tried it without good results - please read this. You will find out why it may not have worked for you and how you may be able to get much better results.

#1 Viscosupplementation

Viscosupplementation has gained quite a bit of popularity in recent years and it has gotten mixed results for a couple of reasons.

But before we get into that, here's what you need to know about viscosupplementation.

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubrication fluids in your knee.

In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up."

The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid." Pharmaceutical companies (with the help of scientists) can now make natural synovial fluid gel-like compounds that, during viscosupplementation, treatments... doctors can precisely introduce directly into the knee and other joints.

This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the injection is slightly off, the medication will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NY Pain MD use Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology or P.A.T.T. so they can actually see the medicine going directly into the knee joint during the treatment.

Research shows that doctors performing joint injections without imaging technology can miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.

If you have tried viscosupplementation without this imaging technology and without good results - this may very well be why.

That's why NY Pain MD takes it even one step further. They do not just use one-step process of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different "brands" or formulas. Like all medications, some people respond better to one than another. So, the experts at NY Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out what is the best one for YOU.

One last thing: The experts at NY Pain MD have found that earlier you start viscosupplementation the better.

This is most likely because the longer you wait - the more joint destruction takes place.

That's why NY Pain MD is now seeing so many patients as young as 35 to 40.

Summary: If you have arthritis pain and have not tried Viscosupplementation you should look into it as soon as possible.

If you have tried it without good results, you may still be able to get great results with the proper targeted imaging and specific medication.

What Should You Do If Viscosupplementation Fails?

When conservative treatment, including viscosupplementation fails ... most knee arthritis sufferers believe their only option is total knee replacement surgery.

This is not true...and here is why

There is another treatment for serious knee arthritis pain most people (and even doctors) do not know about.

#2: Radiofrequency Treatment

This treatment is technically called, "Radiofrequency Neurotomy." Or RF for short.

RF is a procedure that is based the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

Knee Arthritis Suffers Successful Treatments?

Needs To Know - Before Or After Knee Replacement Surgery

Several branches of nerves that surround the knee are known as "genicular nerves."

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to the genicular nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerve from transmitting pain signals.

There are two distinct parts to this treatment. First, a test, diagnostic "G Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, then one two week later, Radio Frequency waves are applied for long term relief.

Is It Safe?

Research has shown this to provide relief for patients and the procedure to be safe and effective.

One study published November 4, 2010 in the journal Pain found that RF treated subjects on average "achieved at least 50% knee pain relief at 1,4 and 12 weeks, respectively. No patient reported a post procedure adverse event during the follow-up period.

Some studies indicate some patients may get years of relief in some cases." RF neurotomy (radio frequency treatment) of genicular nerves leads to significant pain reduction and functional improvement in a subset of elderly chronic knee osteoarthritis pain, and thus may be an effective treatment in such cases."

It should also be mentioned that, like all procedures, results will vary patient to patient.

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication and viscosupplementation do not offer good enough results.

RF can be utilized before resorting to total knee replacement. RF allows many patients to avoid knee replacement surgery.

RF has also been found effective AFTER knee replacement surgery when the patient still feels pain.

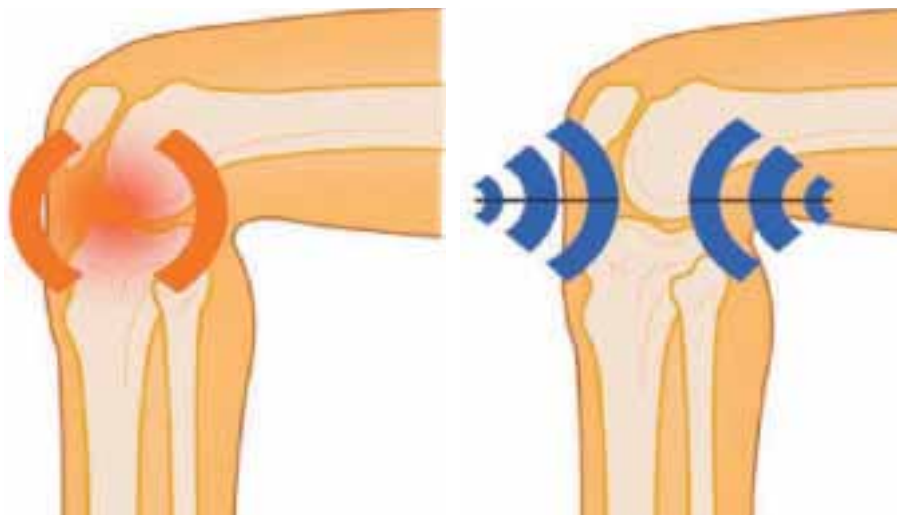

The pain after a failed knee replacement surgery can be debilitating and this procedure can be the only thing that helps and provided relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treatment or not.

Many experts suggest choosing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most advanced technology all under one roof.

Advanced Treatment Uses Medical Radio Frequency Waves To Relieve Pain

Science rescues knee arthritis sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many. Many patients still in pain after a knee replacement may respond very well to these treatments allowing the possibility of avoiding additional surgery.

This way, the doctors working on your case can give you a proper examination and advise the best possible treatment plan for your individual case.

Several experts work as a team to offer you the best treatment options at the appropriate time to maximize results. It is also very convenient to have all your doctors and treatments in one place. Traveling to different offices can be time consuming and even more expensive.

NY Pain MD believes this "X" factor is one of the reasons so many knee arthritis sufferers travel from all over to be treated at their advanced medical clinics.

NY Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get some of their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NY Pain MD

If you would like a complimentary screening, just call 800-632-0890 and tell the scheduling coordinator "I would like a complimentary knee arthritis screening." The screenings fill up fast every month. If you do not call in time to get one this month, the scheduling coordinators will get you appointed for next month

This screening is no cost and no obligation. Many of the treatments offered are covered by many insurance plans and Medicare

Meghan Markle earned a Vanity Fair cover

Listen, I like Meghan Markle. But I'd like to remind you that if she weren't dating Prince Harry, she'd just be a regular ol' actress with a role on a USA network show. Regular ol' actresses on the USA network don't get Vanity Fair covers — but Meghan Markle has. And the "Suits" actress is conveniently opening up about her "true love" with Prince Harry.

"I can tell you that at the end of the day, I think it's really simple," she says. "We're two people who are really happy and in love."

"I'm sure there will be a time when we will have to come forward and present ourselves and have stories to tell," she continues. "But I hope what people will understand is that this is our time. This is for us. It's part of what makes it so special, that it's just ours." Aw. If I wasn't dead inside, that would touch my heart parts.

John Legend tried, failed to dump Chrissy Teigen

Allow me to explain: In an interview with The Guardian, the paper notes that Legend and Teigen — who married in 2013 — have been together for 10 years. Except for one time for a whole half-hour. "I was really stressed and busy," he says. "I was just like: 'I'd just be happier single right now,' and she was like: 'No.'" LOL, Classic Teigs.

Teigen confirmed as much via Twitter, saying "It wasn't a typical break up. He was on tour and his voice hurt and he was being a whiny face about everything and so yeah, I was like 'no.'" Atta girl. So yeah, these two are still my faves. Ugh.

The Kardashians are still shunning Caitlyn Jenner

Remember when Caitlyn Jenner wrote that hot mess memoir "The Secrets of My Life?" You know, the one where she described her sex life with Kris, even though nobody asked? Well, the Kardashians are still mad about it — so much so that they basically don't talk to Jenner anymore.

The former Olympian opened up about her fractured relationship in an interview with "Good Morning Britain" — to that over-the-top aspiring-Voldemort type, Piers Morgan.

"Since the book came out, I've never talked to Kris again. Kim, I haven't talked to in six, nine months, whatever it is.

"I love Kim. She's a great person," she continued. "It's a big loss in my life, not having her there anymore."

Jenner is still in touch with daughters Kendall — the Pepsi one — and Kylie — the one with the wigs.

Well, Caitlyn. You dug your own grave, filled with maybe lies and support of Trump, so. Lie in it, or whatever.

Katy & Orlando went paddleboarding again

A year and change since that time Orlando Bloom and his exposed dick went paddle boarding with Katy Perry, the two have found romance on the water again. Only this time, Bloom managed to keep his junk in his swim trunks.

Over Labor Day weekend, the extra exes were spotted partaking in the water sport on a beach in Cali, and are maybe back together, per a source at E! News. In August, the 32-year-old ratchet pop star and 40-year-old man-elf were seen canoodling at an Ed Sheeran concert. (Man, their dates are such snoozes!)

Perry is being vague about whether they are a thing again or not. A couple weeks back, during an interview at Sirius XM's "The Morning Mashup," the "Swish Swish" singer talked around the issue, making noncommittal statements like, "It's nice to keep people you love around you," and "When you get older, lines get blurred."

Bloom and Perry first broke up/decided to take "respectful, loving space from each other" back in February, after dating seven months. Getting back together is kinda lame, but hey, it's basically cuffing season, so we can't blame 'em.

Matt Damon reveals how Trump landed so many movie cameos

The president allegedly went to ridiculous lengths for screen time.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
@MetroNewYork
gregory.wakeman@metro.us

Before he became the leader of the free world, President Trump used to pass his time dabbling in his various business ventures and trying to score a Donald Trump cameo wherever he could on television and in film.

He was rather successful at the latter, too, appearing in the likes of "Home Alone 2: Lost in New York," "The Fresh Prince of Bel Air," "Zoolander" and "Two Weeks Notice," but never managed to become a bona-fide Hollywood leading man.

Trump used to tell directors who wanted to shoot in his buildings that they had to write him a small part before he gave them the OK to film.

The extent of how far Trump would go to get on screen was revealed by Matt Damon in an interview with The Hollywood Reporter. Damon recalled a story from director Martin Brest about how Trump interfered on the production for "Scent of a Woman."

"The deal was that if you wanted to shoot in one of his buildings, you had to write him a part," Damon told the publication. "Martin Brest had to write something in 'Scent of a Woman' — and the whole crew was in on it. You have to waste an hour of your day with a bulls—t shot: Donald Trump walks in and Al Pacino's like, 'Hello, Mr. Trump!' — you had to call him by name — and then he exits."

Damon insisted that the whole exercise was completely futile, though, because most directors would simply decide to cut the obnoxious cameo out of the film in the editing suite.

"You waste a little time so that you can get the permit, and then you can cut the scene out," Damon told THR, before referencing arguably the most famous Trump cameo: "But I guess in 'Home Alone 2,' they left it in."

In Season 4 of "You're the Worst," Gretchen (Aya Cash) is spiraling after Jimmy ghosted her in the season 3 finale.

Aya Cash: You can't live in this world and not suffer from anxiety

The "You're the Worst" actress talks how she stays sane — and how Gretchen doesn't in season four of the FXX comedy.

KATE MOONEY
@yatinbrooklyn
kate.mooney@metro.us

Where we last left off in "You're the Worst" — the season three finale — Jimmy (Chris Geere) had just proposed to Gretchen (Aya Cash) and then impulsively driven away, abandoning her on a mountain in L.A. The new season, out today, is all about the eccentric and destructive ways our favorite trash people on TV are (separately) coping with the trauma of the breakup.

Jimmy has moved to a trailer park for retirees, passing the time drinking whiskey and binge watching "The Fall Guy" with a geriatric misanthrope after his own heart.

Gretchen now lives with Lindsey — who miraculously sort of has her shit together, with a job she loves and a friends-with-benefits sitch with Edgar — literally hasn't left the apartment in three months and has also casually started smoking crack.

Ahead of the season-four premiere, we caught up with Aya Cash — who, unlike Gretchen, is very much not a mess — to talk about how she's staying sane under Trump, her favorite hangs in Brooklyn and her song of the summer.

Do you relate to Gretchen's struggles with anxiety and depression?

I don't know how you can live in this world and not suffer at least a little bit from anxiety and depression.

How are you staying sane under Trump right now?

I'm not? [Laughs] I'm off Twitter, which helps, because at least the news cycle is a little less immediate, which is actually also probably what I miss most about Twitter. It's an attraction and a repulsion. But it's been helpful to me to not be engaged in the minute-to-minute news. I can learn about it in an hour and it will still happen.

Do you find Instagram calmer?

Yeah. Is Trump on Instagram? [Laughs] Oh God, what a nightmare. You know we'd see some dick pics eventually. I have compulsive behaviors with it too, it just hasn't gotten to the extent that I should quit.

You're starring in a film at TIFF, "Mary Goes Round." Can you tell us about that?

It's a microbudget indie with a first-time filmmaker [Molly McGlynn]. I read the script and Skyped with the director and fell madly in love with her. It's about a woman who is an alcoholic and an addict.

tion counselor. Her life is falling apart when she receives a message from her estranged father to come home and help with her sister who she's never met, because he's dying. It's a coming-home story and an addiction story and it's a really beautiful little movie.

What are some of your favorite hangs in Brooklyn?

One of my best friends owns a bar called Donna in South Williamsburg, so if I'm going to go to a bar I go there, even though I live nowhere near there. There's a restaurant called Rucola which was my local. I'm not really a going-out kind of person so I don't have any club recommendations [laughs], but places in my old neighborhood like Mile End and Building on Bond, and BookCourt was my favorite bookstore. Books are Magic opened over the summer, and I'm so excited to go back and go to it.

You're a big reader. Any favorite recent reads?

I just finished "Stoner" by John Williams, it was just incredible. I cried at the end and looked around, like, "What am I doing with my life? What's important?" I had asked for recommendations on Twitter for books and Carrie Coon sent me a list, none of which I'd ever heard of, so I just bought everything she recommended. I just started

"The Argonauts" [by Maggie Nelson] and I'm really enjoying that; her structure is very interesting.

Most important, can we talk about your dog?

Yes! I'll talk about my dog all day. Her name is Lucy Tami Cash. Tami is for Tami Taylor on "Friday Night Lights." We also call her Goose. She's a 22-pound terrier mix rescue and she's the love of my life. She's doing the entire "Hamilton" mixtape choreographed dance, one by one on Instagram.

Any music you've been into lately?

Every summer I get obsessed with one mildly offensive pop song. This summer it was "I Spy" by Kyle. It's pretty bad. At one point they say, "All my bitches come in pairs like balls in my nutsack." So, you know, really, really classy shit.

Speaking of classy shit, is Gretchen getting a tramp stamp?

No! People saw that on Instagram and kept asking. I have one and have to get tattoo coverup every time we film a sex scene because I don't have permission by the artist — because I was 18, and don't know who did it — to show it. It's of a giant hawk. My name supposedly means "hawk," but it also may or may not mean "ouch," so it works either way. That's my 18-year-old me in the '90s tattoo.

Worsties Jimmy (Chris Geere) and Gretchen are now single in season 4. AUTUMN DE WILDE/FX

Dessert on the down low

What's baking inside Flatiron's gambling den turned sweets lounge, Dessert Bar at Patisserie Chanson.

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

A former Prohibition-era gambling school is transforming into a speakeasy of a different kind: an underground dessert bar.

Tucked into the once-illicit basement of the hit French bakery Patisserie Chanson is Dessert Bar, opening Sept. 7. Upstairs, Michelin-starred chef Rory Macdonald turns out classical French cakes, pastries and breads paired with coffee in a modernist space. Downstairs, he's embraced the space's heritage with carvings of playing cards on the wall and low light, with guests seated at a wide 16-seat bar where desserts are assembled in front of them.

"Having a dessert bar has been a dream of mine pretty much since I've been a chef," Macdonald says. "What we're trying to achieve is really for you to see all the work that goes into it, rather than at a restaurant where it just arrives and you eat it."

The tasting menu officially spans six courses, "but in reality it's closer to 10 or 12," he explains. "We start with aperitivos and we end with digestifs, as if this was a normal meal." Courses are laid out like sheet music, each with high and low notes instead of tasting notes.

The first few courses start out more savory but still very much in keeping with the theme of dessert, with ingredients like moliterno (an Italian goat's milk cheese) with black truffle, olive oil gelato and pancetta.

Then come delicate plates of vanilla panna cotta with a jus of local strawberries and Champagne foam, a sculptural cake of miso with a marbled slice of grapefruit, sweet-looking heart-shaped apples with a kick of jalapeno. "We use honey as the sweetener for everything, so any sugar in the dessert will be natural sweetness," Macdonald says. "The whole thing we're trying to achieve is balance so when you leave here, you're not in a sugar rush."

Miso and Pink Grapefruit

Gluten and nut allergies can be accommodated, and the menu will change with the seasons.

There's also an optional paired drinks menu with your meal, featuring two cocktails and a mix of Champagnes and dessert and fortified wines — the idea, again, is not to overwhelm you so that you feel uncomfortable (or in this case, hammered) by the end of the meal.

Macdonald and a mixologist spent weeks tasting each dessert with 10-15 different drink pairings. And while "Champagne will go with almost everything," he admits, "it would be nice if people really trust us to go with a pairing because it really elevates everything and becomes an experience, not just having dessert."

The whole experience is meant to last two hours, but patrons are welcome to stay and enjoy their last few drinks for another 45 minutes. "Once you finish dessert, you want to sit back, relax a little bit," says Macdonald. "Then you leave at your leisure."

Talk about comfort food.

Lose track of time in this pink garden

Lunar Garden is open now through Nov. 5. PROVIDED

There's no hotter trend than Millennial pink, and it's now coming to a new surreal Japanese garden in Chelsea.

Lunar Garden reimagines a traditional Japanese garden of raked sand and rock sculptures in hues of pink, courtesy of Daniel Arsham. The artist has made something of a hobby of surrealist landscapes lately — he also filled the Oculus in Lower Manhattan with rainclouds for World Water Day.

"After spending many years traveling to Japan I became fascinated with the dry gardens in Kyoto, specifically the way in which the gardens are permanent yet completely ephemeral and remade every day," Arsham says. "These spaces, although they feel like they are in the present moment for us, essentially cross time."

Further playing with the ideas of permanence yet constant change, Lunar Garden is lit solely by a 9-foot light orb resembling the moon. Adding color "creates a sense that the gardens are simultaneously familiar and surreal."

There's a pretty amazing story behind the exhibit, too. Arsham is colorblind, but a new pair of high-tech specs have allowed him to see a broader spectrum of colors. Lunar Garden is the first work he's created since gaining limited color vision; until now, he's worked exclusively with black, white, blues and grays.

Lunar Garden is open now through Nov. 5 at The Gallery at Cadillac House, 330 Hudson St. Presented by Visionaire, it is free and open to the public from Mon-Fri 8 a.m.-7 p.m. and Sat-Sun 10 a.m.-5 p.m. EVA KIS

Tips from the author of "Unf*ck Your Habitat" on how to refresh your home workspace.

KATE MOONEY
@yatinbrooklyn
kate.mooney@metro.us

Whether you work from home or often bring work home with you, persuading yourself to be productive in the place where you live is always challenging. There are so many distractions and comfortable places to lounge, like, your bed, that it's a wonder we ever get anything done. Now that summer is petering out, we all tell ourselves we're going to buckle down. But if you're filled with dread every time you glance over at your messy desk, you'll likely head straight to the couch and queue up the Netflix instead.

The trick is, well, learning to trick yourself into doing the work by making your home office a place that you don't hate being. Rachel Hoffman, the author of "Unf*ck Your Habitat," tells us her hacks for making your home workspace positive and clutter-free.

Personalize it

"Make it a space where you don't feel like you're being put in time-out," advises Hoffman. She suggests incorporating things that you enjoy, from framed photos to inspirational mood boards.

Or, literally bring life into your work area by adding plants to your desk or your office. "If I put plants in a room,

Surround yourself with inspiration.

I have to eventually go water them," she says.

It's important to make yourself comfortable enough that you don't automatically retreat to your bed: "If you're going to invest in one thing, get yourself a good chair so you can do your work and not want to escape," she suggests.

Remember that your workspace doesn't have to look a certain way to be effective. If you do your best work sitting on the couch using a laptop, why not bring a couch into your office?

Cover up your cords

If you have cords running everywhere, your work area will look chaotic, and you'll feel chaotic, too. Investing in cable management, using wraps and covers to conceal all those pesky wires and chargers, will make a big difference in helping you declutter.

Find the storage system that works for you

"People often force themselves to change their organizational style to fit the system they think they should be using," Hoffman says. Instead, figure out how you organize and then come up with a system that works for you.

Not everybody files papers; Hoffman says she prefers to stack them. She fills labeled boxes with tidy stacks of papers and instead using her filing cabinet to store bulky objects, such as her printer.

3 things to watch while the Mets finish up their season

The Mets and their fans are counting down the days until 2018. However, there is still work to be done.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

No one would blame the New York Mets for basically just going through the motions as they wait to be put out of their misery.

Once favored to make the postseason for a third-straight season, which would have set a franchise record, the Mets broke down, plummeted to Earth and broke into a billion different pieces.

I'm not just talking about the win-loss column, either. An important contributor went down almost every week (that's not too far of an exaggeration) with an injury that further called the team's training staff into question.

In about four weeks though, this bitterly disappointing 2017 season will finally come to an end and usher in an offseason that allows the team to reload, reload and most importantly, get healthy.

The last men standing in orange and blue though still have something to play for as there is plenty on the line; just not for this year.

Here are a few things Mets fans should watch out for while trudging through the end of the season:

Can the kids cut it?

A lack of production from the left side of the infield along with a large turnover within the roster allowed the Mets to call up their top two prospects, shortstop Amed Rosario and first baseman Dominic Smith.

Tabbed as the future given their offensive abilities, the two have had their fair share of growing pains since their big-league debuts.

If Mets fans want any consolation though,

Aaron Judge struggled when he was called up to the Yankees last season. Granted, good things rarely happen to the Mets:

The battle for center field

The corner outfield spots for the Mets next season are pretty set with Yoenis Cespedes in left and Michael Con-

The same can't be said for center field as

Familia's quest to reclaim closer role

Reliever Jeury Familia might have had the most difficult 2017 of any Met.

After being suspended for the first 15 games for violating the league's domestic violence policy, Familia had to undergo surgery to remove a blood clot in his throwing shoulder, sidelining him for more than three months.

Since his return, he's struggled mightily:

Popular del Potro looks to crash US Open semifinals

The Argentine is keen on ruining a possible semifinal between two of the game's greatest.

ADAM ZAGORIA
@AdamZagoria
sports@metro.us

Given the huge roars from the crowd coming out of the grandstand court on Tuesday evening at the U.S. Open, you would think Juan Martin del Potro was playing tennis in his native Tandil, Argentina and not in Flushing Meadows, Queens.

The 6-foot-6 Argentine has always been a crowd favorite in New York — and he only added to his legend by overcoming a sickness and a two-sets-to-love deficit to beat No. 6 Dominic Thiem in a thrilling five-setter that many are calling the match of the tournament.

"It was very important because I was trying to retire the match in the second set," del Potro, 28, said of the crowd support. "Then I saw the crowd waiting for more tennis, waiting for my good forehands, good serves. I took all that energy to change in a good way and think about the fight and not retire."

"I did well, and I start to enjoy a little bit more about the fans. I think I did everything well after the third set. The crowd enjoys with me all points. It was an unbelievable atmosphere."

The crowd for del Potro's next match may be conflicted because he will play No. 3 Roger Federer, the five-time U.S. Open champ and 19-time major winner in a highly-anticipated quarterfinal on Wednesday night at Arthur Ashe Stadium. Federer almost always has the support of the majority of the fans, but del Potro will surely have his supporters in this one.

"He was gone for so long [with wrist injuries] that it's just really nice to see him back playing in these kinds of matches," said Federer, 36. "That's what he came back for, to get crowd support the way he got it. We could even hear it on center court."

Del Potro became a crowd favorite in New York when he captured his only Grand Slam title at the U.S. Open in 2009, using his massive serve and huge flat forehand to beat Rafael Nadal in the semifinals and then Federer in the final.

At the time, many thought it signified the first of several majors for the Argentine, but he was hampered by wrist injuries over the ensuing years and at times it looked like he might never return to the tour. In 2016, though, he beat Novak Djokovic and Rafael Nadal at the Olympics before losing to Andy Murray in the gold-medal match.

"I was sorry for him because I think he had a legitimately good chance to become world No. 1 at that time," Federer said. "So I'm really happy for him. It's a good match to look forward to. Reminds me clearly of the 2009 final that we had, which was an epic, too. I hope we can produce another good one."

Part of del Potro's appeal to fans is that he's a gentle giant who is capable of crushing massive forehands like the ones he brought down on Thiem, yet he's also humble and soft-spoken.

"I know the people like when I hit hard with my forehands," he said. "The people stand up from the chairs when I hit good winners. I like to do that. But it doesn't happen very often. When I feel that confidence to do my best shots, I know I can be dangerous for all the guys."

One of the key questions entering this match is how del Potro will recover following his sickness and a match that lasted three hours, 35 minutes. Federer's win over Philipp Kohlschreiber, by contrast, was over in 1 hour, 50 minutes.

"He's certainly one of the most dangerous players in the world so hopefully he'll feel better and he'll let it all hang out,"

John McEnroe said on ESPN.

At this point, del Potro and 19-year-old Russian Andrey Rublev are the only players standing in the way of a Federer-Nadal semifinal on Friday. The two legends have met at every Grand Slam tournament, but never at the U.S. Open. Nadal plays Rublev on Wednesday afternoon.

Del Potro, for his part, is hoping for yet another win over Federer to spoil the party — and please his fans.

"Maybe I have the chance to play Roger again in this tournament which is special for me and I would like to play my best tennis," he said.

Aries Be careful not to put blame on the wrong person. You are best off watching what happens before you act. High-pressure tactics will backfire.

Taurus Learn from your mistakes and don't rely on someone else to take care of your responsibilities. Work diligently toward your goal, and don't stop until you are satisfied.

Gemini Partnership problems will develop if honesty is not maintained. Communication will help clear up any uncertainty that you or someone else is feeling.

Cancer A unique approach to an old idea will motivate you. If you believe in what you are doing, you'll gain the support you require to finish what you start.

Leo Don't miss an opportunity due to your responsibilities. Find alternatives that will allow you to follow your dreams and not fall short on your commitments.

Virgo Changes at home will add to your comfort and encourage better relationships with the people you live with. Getting along and pitching in will bring good results.

Libra Get everything in place before you share your plans. Someone you live with or deal with regularly will interfere if you are too open about the changes you want to make.

Scorpio Creative endeavors or networking with people who could help you get ahead will bring results. Participation is key to understanding and gathering information.

Sagittarius An emotional situation will leave you speechless if you aren't diplomatic when discussing personal matters with your peers, friends or relatives. Stick to the facts.

Capricorn If you let your imagination run wild, you will come up with all sorts of interesting ideas and plans that can help you get ahead. Look for new ways to use your talents.

Aquarius Try hard to satisfy all the demands placed on you so that you'll make a greater impact when you lay out plans and ask for backup. Celebrate with someone you love.

Pisces Speak up, but be fair. You'll be contradicted if you don't stick to the facts and give an honest assessment of a situation that involves you. Keep an open mind. EUGENIA LAST
